Next Generation Workforce – Empowering Young People for Improved Employment

The project REOPEN aims at:

the gap between education and labour market requirements by providing training and fairly paid internships for young people in Latvia, Estonia, and Finland strong links between higher education institutions, small and medium-sized enterprises, and business support organisations to enhance youth employability and strengthen cross-border cooperation.

The project REOPEN will result in:

300 young people from partner countries will boost their employability via three training modules – soft, digital, green and field-specific skills – earning certificates incl. 3 ECTS
150 young people will also gain internships and letters of reference from hosting small and medium enterprises and organizations.
